I'm also OK with the names as long as "T1" is a Tier 1 station and so forth. I assume that "T" means "Tier"....

Dear Kimberly,

I just left you a voice mail. From John Hebert's note below, it sounds like the name "Protecta" is not permitted. We also asked if we could use this name but with a qualifier statement. From the context of the note, I assume this isn't an option.

The first communication on this matter was in early December 2011 when I submitted a notification to request the "Protecta T1 Disposable" and "T3 Disposable" names. We have lost alot of time. We need to proceed to register the product in the states.

We are proposing the alternate names, "T1 Mouse" and "T3 Mouse". Please let me know if there is any issue with these. If not I will send a notification requesting these. Is there a possibility of a rapid turn around for this since we have lost so much time?

Your cooperation is much appreciated.

Best regards,

Disposable

John - Sorry about the delay in getting back to you; I've been on detail to another branch for the past month and it's been difficult for me to tie up loose ends from IRB. We've discussed the proposed name internally and have decided to not allow it. We feel that brand "Protecta" is an implied safety claim and that it could confuse the consumer with regards to type of bait station they want to purchase. If you would like to discuss this further, please contact Kimberly Nesci. She's currently the acting chief of IRB.

Regards,
John

Dear Bill and John,

Could you check on the status of the use of the Protecta names with a qualifier statement (options provided on the attachment)? The last time we communicated on this, my understanding is that you were discussing this internally.

Thanks,

Dear Bill,

I received your letters indicating that the name proposed for this product has a safety claim embedded in it. As you are aware, we have used the Protecta name on our bait stations for over 20 years. The thought is that the current professional use bait stations and new products with bait stations would have a family name "Protecta". This product would only be used in the professional segment who are
